

Local Hero Runs NYC Marathon for Lung Cancer Research, Saves Lives, is honored by Hometown Newspaper

Oct. 14th, 2007 Seattle

Anacortes raised musician Shane Chapman is attempting to train for and run the New York City Marathon in only eight weeks, during which time the ambitious rocker hopes to raise $3000 for the Thomas G. Labrecque Foundation. Chapman, having never run more than a few miles before last month, is excited to meet both the fund raising and physical challenges such a feat will undoubtedly bring. So far the passionate pugilist has raised over $1500 and has yet to stage his grand Seattle benefit featuring his wildly entertaining band The Red Note. Having played together in Seattle for over three years, The Red Note is in full support of Chapman's cause including bassist Matt Wexler who will also be running the November marathon.

Donations for the Thomas G. Labrecque foundation can be made online through the band's website at www.therednote.com or in person at the Seattle benefit on Oct. 26th.

The Benefit

Folks interested in supporting Chapman and The Red Note should make the drive down to Seattle on Friday Oct. 26th for an evening of outdoor music, hot mulled wine and space heaters for rocking late into the night. Also on the scene will be Anacortes juggler Wren Schultz and his mind blowing talent. The show will be held in the garden court of Fremont's History House which is covered in case of rain and, incidentally, overdue for a good rocking.
